

Juvenile Detention Phone Policy

Youth in the detention center may speak to parents and/or legal guardians once a day. If parents are in separate households each parent will receive one phone call per day. A phone call is limited to 5 minutes. Parents may use their time and allow siblings and or grandparents speak to the resident. No one else is allowed to be on the phone speaking with the resident. Three way calls are forbidden and can cause a restriction to that parent's calls. If the phone policy is being abused detention staff may supervise all parental phone calls by their presence or by using the speaker phone. In extreme cases in which the policy has been ignored phone calls can be temporarily suspended.
